President's Message

First I want to put a shout out to all the committee chairs and members that have worked so hard thus far to keep the momentum of our fine chapter going. Thank you for all the things that you do. It was my privilege to go to Washington and accept the Gold Chapter of Excellence award once more on behalf of our great chapter and members.

During the time spent in Washington we had many educational opportunities. I was able to attend a session with Kaira Sturdivant Rouda. She has written a book titled Real You Incorporated: 8 Essentials for the Women Entrepreneurs. During her presentation she pointed out key ways to structure your business for success. Stressing that your Passion for what you're doing and your Authenticity are key in making whatever you do a success. I recommend you read this book. It is packed with great information.

I also had the opportunity to hear Ellen Boyle. She spoke on the 7 Principles of Leadership:

- 1) Clarity
- 2) Mindset Mastery
- 3) Anticipation
- 4) Strategy
- 5) Taking Action
- 6) Assessment
- 7) Renewal .

Following these Seven Simple Steps increases our chances for success in our daily lives as well as in business.

I can't emphasize enough what a great opportunity we have with Women's Council of Realtors to expand our knowledge. Please take advantage of your membership and attend the State Meeting in Flagstaff this year. With a little investment and help from our Chapter Spirit Award you too can experience some of the gifts that Women's Council Of Realtors offers. Let's keep up the momentum and continue on with a banner year.

Thank you once again for the privilege of serving as your president.

National Convention for Women's Council of REALTORS®

In May I had the opportunity to attend the National Convention for Women's Council of REALTORS® in Washington DC. Some of the past presidents had told me that this was their favorite event and I was not disappointed. The caliber of the attendees was refreshing – there were 500 plus members from all over the country networking and sharing their trials and successes. It made me realize that even though we are in a remote area, we still have a large group of people who are there for us to make ourselves and our chapter better.

Both Friday and Saturday were packed full of Educational opportunities. The keynote speakers were Matthew Ferrara speaking about "Real Estate, The Next Generation," Pat Zaby talking about "No-to-Low Cost Marketing" and Kaira Sturdivant Rouda expounding on "Putting the REAL YOU in your business." Ms. Rouda wrote a book entitled Real You Incorporated: 8 Essential for Women Entrepreneurs that reminds you to find the one word that describes you, identify the heroes in your life and what qualities that you admire about them so that you can find your own brand. You then should market that brand to all of your clients so that you can be authentic and transparent. It was a very inspiring talk.

During the evening event, we had two large tables of all the members from the State of Arizona. We were all there to support each other and applaud all of our successes. I am proud to say that because of the amount of members we have, the programs that we put on, and the events that we host, we again came home with the Gold Chapter of the Year Award. Arizona also won the award for being a Gold State Chapter.

Thank you all for putting your trust in me as one of your leaders. I intend to take all that I learned and put it to use to make our Chapter more valuable to you, our members.
